The master suite is no exception. Inspired by the owners' joint desire for a soft, romantic feel, the designers mounted a series of rods from the ceiling and hung sheer linen draperies around the bed. Cottle gave the room an additional cozy spot for lounging and reading in designing a pop-out corner window, which extends out into an aspen grove. "You can't design a house for somebody unless you understand how they want to live in it," says the wife. "I had a million ideas when we began. I gave Yvonne and John veto power, and they pulled it all together. It's a real beginning for us." L
